

THE HIBBY.

BY WILLIAM LEITCH.

This little book I rather own, Than all the gold and silver, That'er in monarch's coffers shone, Than all their diamonds, Nay, were the seas of crystal,
The earth a golden ball,
And diamonds at the sun's night, This book were worth them all.

How hateful to ambition's eye
In glittering hoards of wealth,
When Death's angel hand is nigh,
How vain a banquet feast,
When Death's angel hand is nigh,
How vain a banquet feast,
When Death's angel hand is nigh,
How vain a banquet feast,

No, no! the soul ne'er found relief
In glittering hoards of wealth,
When Death's angel hand is nigh,
How vain a banquet feast,
When Death's angel hand is nigh,
How vain a banquet feast,
When Death's angel hand is nigh,
How vain a banquet feast,

Yes, yes, this little book is worth All else to mortal gaze, For what are all the joys of earth Compared to peace of mind, Tis the quietude of soul,
Tis the quietude of soul,
Tis the quietude of soul,
Tis the quietude of soul,

From the Northampton Courier.
ASTORY OF OLDEN TIMES—10 YEARS AGO.
(Copy of a letter of St. Pomeroy to his wife—written at Burlington.)

From ye Grand Battery 5 mile and half north from ye city of Louisburgh May ye 8th 1745.

My DEAR WIFE—Although ye many dangers and hazards I have been in since I left ye I have been through ye good kindness of God preserved, though much worried with the business I have upon my hands. But I cheerfully on with it, I have much to write, but little time, shall only give ye some hints.

Tuesday the last day of April ye fleet landed on the Island of Cape Breton about 5 miles from Louisburgh—ye French saw our vessels and came out with a company to prevent our landing—but as fast ye boats could get on shore ye men were landed.
A warm engagement with them the some retreated—we followed them out, Cannon boats and Bombs—hundred of them were fired at us from ye city and ye Island Fort—some in ye parades among ye people —but none of them hurt, and as some as we could get ye cannon—ye gave them Fire for Fire and bombarded them on ye west side. Louisburgh an exceeding strong handsome and well situated place with a fine harbor it seems impregnable. But we have been so successful in this that I do not doubt But Providence will Deliver it into our hands.

Sunday May 12th, that at noon of that day, a pliant belonging to a menagerie exhibiting bears, walked out of his tent to ward a span of horses attached to a wagon, came to the city and the horses took fright as the huge beast approached them, broke loose and ran a few rods to the angle of a fence, the pliant followed, capsize d the wagon and threw the horses some two rods over the fence. One of the horses rose with several broken ribs, and managed to escape his assailant, who fell upon the other with his tusks, tore out his entrails, and continued to toss him along the fence some ten rods or more.

At this time the keeper, who was at dinner when the elephant escaped from the tent,
fright as the huge beast approached them,
of a fence, the pliant followed, capsize
other with his tusks, tore out his entrails,
and continued to toss him along the fence
some ten rods or more.

My dear wife—I expect to be longer gone from home than I did when I left it—but I desire not to think of returning till Louisburgh is taken, and hope God will enable you to submit quietly to his will whatever it may be, and in all ye have courage and good conduct to go through with ye great business ye is now upon your hands and not think your time all spent in teaching and governing your family according to the word of God.

My company in home are well; some of them are ill, but hope none dangerous—the affairs at home I can order nothing But must wholly leave hoping ye they will be well ordered and taken care of. My kind love to Mr. Sweet and my duty to mother Hunt, and love to brothers and sisters all.

My dear wife—if it be ye will of God, I hope to see your pleasant face again—but if God in his Holy and Sovereign Providence has ordered it otherwise—I hope to have a glorious meeting with you in ye Kingdom of Heaven where there are no wars nor fatiguing marches, no roaring cannon nor cracking Bombs shells, nor long campaigns; But an eternity to spend in perfect harmony and undisturbed peace.

This is the hearty desire and prayer of him thy your loving husband.

To Mrs. Mary Pomeroy at Northampton in New England.

He did see his wife's pleasant face again.
At the surrender of Louisburgh, 1775, he was made a captain. In 1775 he was, for his bravery, promoted to command as a colonel against the French and Indians under Baron Dieskau at Lake George, whom it said Pomeroy wounded, captured and treated with great humanity, with which the French general was so pleased, that he gave Col. Pomeroy a gold watch; at a subsequent period Col. Pomeroy wore this watch at the battle of Bunker Hill. This watch is now supposed to be owned by Dr. Pom-roy of Stockbridge, in Mass.

In 1775, June 17, Col. Pomeroy started for Boston to participate in the defence of this country. He rode to Charleston Neck and dismounted, because he did not think it conscientious to expose a valuable borrower's horse to the cross fire of the British shot and floating batteries. Bring dismount and standing upon terra firma, he fled.

across the neck on foot, despite the shower of cannon shot, with a whole skin, and met Putnam who said, he had exclaimed in surprise, "What, Putnam, you here! I'll be bound if you don't break out of your coffin, if you should smell gun powder."— Putnam took command of the left wing of the troops, and in conjunction with Prescott and Warren, bravely maintained his position at the battle of Bunker Hill, until every charge of powder was expended.

Contempt of Court.
An amusing incident occurred in a court room, some years ago, in one of the back counties in Missouri. I do not now recollect whether I heard it related, or read it; but any way it is too good to be lost. If it has ever been published, I beg pardon of the author of the original for using my own words in giving a version of the matter, but I think it has not.

The court on the occasion alluded to was seated, and a case about to be tried. Now his honor, the judge, was a man stricken in years, yet he could ride a race, shoot a rifle, "shuffle and deal" as well as the "great man," and when not engaged in his official duties, was exceedingly affable with every body. Indeed such were his manners, that if he had lived in the vicinity of Manhattan —without stepping over the strictest bounds of propriety, I think I can safely say he would have been termed "one of the boys." —yet with all his playfulness, when fairly seated on the "wooden tick," he was like Moses of old, "an austere man," and he who presumed to trifle with the dignity of "the court" on these occasions generally suffered severely.

Well, as I was saying—"this honor" was seated, and a case about to be commenced, when in a voice of thunder the sheriff proclaimed "silence." There was a pause—the Judge looked up and saw an elderly man near the lawyers' table, who had not yet uncovered his head. The court could not brook such disrespect to the ermine; its dignity was assailed, and his honor called out in an authoritative tone:

"Mr. Sheriff, remove that man's hat." That functionary, who until now stood in a corner leaning upon his rifle, stepped up and politely knocked off the hat with the nuzzle of his murderous weapon, whereupon Mr. Badger—Badger was the offender's name—seized, not the Sheriff, but the hat, and clapping it upon his head exclaimed, "Judge, I am bald!"

"Mr. Sheriff," said the court, "we instruct you again to remove Mr. Badger's hat from his head."

The order was instantly executed, and no sooner done than Mr. B. replaced the hat on his head the second time, again insisting that he was bald!

The offended Judge now waxed warm, and rising in his seat, ordered the clerk to enter a fine of five dollars for contempt of court.

Mr. B. was thunderstruck! He deliberately walked up to the bench, and laying down a half dollar before his honor, in a solemn tone thus gave his views of the case to the "law's expounder":

"Your sentence, Judge, is ungentlemanly, but the law is imperative, and I reckon I'll stand it, so here to four bits, and the four dollars and a half, that you need not make us quit playing 'N. Y. Saturday Empire'."

An Elephant's Doings.
We learn by a gentleman who left Lockport on Saturday, that at noon of that day,
a pliant belonging to a menagerie ex-
ward a span of horses attached to a wagon,
fright as the huge beast approached them,
of a fence, the pliant followed, capsize
other with his tusks, tore out his entrails,
and continued to toss him along the fence
some ten rods or more.

At this time the keeper, who was at dinner
when the elephant escaped from the tent,
fright as the huge beast approached them,
of a fence, the pliant followed, capsize
other with his tusks, tore out his entrails,
and continued to toss him along the fence
some ten rods or more.
